RE: The Department of Labor's EVE Award
DATE: July 30, 1997

Last year, following our audit by the Department of Labor, La Salle University was nominated for the EVE Award. The Exemplary Voluntary Efforts (EVE) Award is one of several prestigious awards given each year by the Department of Labor and the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs honoring "organizations for their exemplary efforts in assuring equal employment opportunity and affirmative action for minorities, women, individuals with disabilities and special disabled and Vietnam-Era veterans." More specifically, the EVE award honors Federal contractors for outstanding affirmative action programs that have enhanced equal employment opportunities in the workplace. I am delighted to tell you that La Salle University will be one of only 5 organizations nationwide that will receive the EVE award this year. We will be showcased at a special ceremony in Washington in September. Details will be available later.

Our success in winning this award is an expression of the exceptional efforts of many people at La Salle who contributed in some way to preparing our initial report, as well as our application for the award. In particular, it is apparent that one of the major reasons we did so well in the competition was the quality of our various community outreach programs. Also, in a special way I would like to highlight the work of Rose Lee Pauline, Assistant Vice President for Business Affairs and Affirmative Action Officer, for extraordinary work over the years in guiding us in our affirmative action efforts, and more recently, in final preparation of the extensive report to the Labor Department and completion of the EVE application.

Campus News is distributed weekly to foster communication and encourage information sharing among University departments. Articles submitted are the responsibility of their authors alone and do not imply an opinion on the part of La Salle University or the Department of Mail and Duplicating Services.

Minutes of the May 20, 1997
12:00 Noon Meeting
Curriculum Committee

In Attendance: Andrew Bean, Greg Bruce, Norbert Belzer, Cynthia Capers, Carol Freeman, David George, Joseph Kane, Barbara Millard, Stephen Smith

Guests: Rev. Francis Berna, Br. Charles Echelmeier, David Efroymson, Eileen Giardino, Marc Moreau,

1. Minutes. Minutes of the May 6, 1997 meeting will be circulated subsequently for review and voting.

2. Catholic Studies Minor. A proposal to establish a minor in Catholic Studies was presented by Dr. Marc Moreau on behalf of a group of faculty and professional staff. An informal discussion group of colleagues had met for many years around the topic of La Salle As A Catholic College. From this origin a subgroup recently began to consider a minor in Catholic Studies. In addition to those attending the meeting, Br. Miguel Campos and Br. Emery Mollenhauer played an active role in the development of the proposal.

It had been agreed prior to this meeting of the Curriculum Committee that if a minor were approved, it would need to have a faculty member who would be responsible for the program. Dr. Marc Moreau agreed to provide this leadership during the initial years of the program.

In the discussion, it was agreed that requirements section would be modified to read "at least two courses in other listed disciplines."

It was also agreed that if the proposal were approved, it would be with the understanding that the creation of new courses was not in any way implied.
The proposal is intended to function with existing courses. However, subsequently, additional course proposals could be brought forward on the same basis as in any major/minor.

There was also discussion concerning which courses would be counted toward the minor. Section I courses seem to be appropriate because of their content. In Section II courses, there was more emphasis placed on who would teach the course. Strong concern was voiced that a participating faculty member might modify the course making it differ from the catalogue description when taught by a Catholic Studies participating faculty member. It was agreed that this should not happen. The observation was made that there are other courses in our curriculum, not listed in Section II of the proposal, which appear to be very appropriate to this minor.

It was suggested that the Women's Studies Minor might provide a curricular model. In that program, decisions about which courses apply are made each semester among the Department Chair, the Program Director and the individual Instructor.

The discussion concluded with the motion that the Curriculum Committee "accept the definition of the minor as proposed and request that identification of courses be reconsidered and brought back to the Committee in the fall semester, 1997." The motion was approved (8-0-1).

3. Modification of the Core Curriculum for School of Nursing Students. The generic BSN curriculum requires 122 credit hours for completion with no electives available. It was noted by the Director of the Undergraduate Program, Dr. Eileen Giardino, that many students want to pursue specific interests such as Women's Studies, develop minors, and take course work in disciplines where the student may have deficiencies.

It was argued that freeing up two courses in the core as electives, as recently approved for the School of Business Administration, would enhance the quality of education for these students.

The discussion was conducted with the understanding that any change in the core would last only as long as the current core remains operative. When the new core curriculum is finalized, that would become operative.

It was moved that the Curriculum Committee agree to modify the core such that it would consist of "two courses in Core IA, two courses in Core IB, and two arts electives." The motion was approved (8-0-1).

Software Q&A

Help Is On The Way!

Ray Cardillo
Training Coordinator
Information Technology

Inside this Issue

- 1 What to do in case of a crash.
- 2 Running ScanDisk.
- 2 Cleaning up after a crash.
- 2 Reclaiming hard disk space.

The Magic of Merlin

As many of you can tell from the bags under my eyes lately, the Help line has been pretty busy. Ed Malinowski, Kahana Chin, Pete Brown and I have been trying to get the faculty and staff computers upgraded to Windows 95 and Office 97 while leaving a trail of baffled users in our wake. Many of the calls coming in to the Info Tech Help line are about crashing problems and software lock-ups.

There is a certain amount of "fame" associated with being one of the "miracle workers" on campus. Many users watch in awe of the great Ed Malinowski (the Mozart of Multi-Tasking) as his fingers fly around a smoking keyboard while complete gibberish scrolls in a DOS window on the computer screen. Moments later, a network connection is made as another relieved user realizes that no matter how much "poking around" you do in Windows 95, it is pretty tough to break a computer.

Well, the days of the great magicians taking their secrets to the grave are long past. In this issue I will divulge the secrets of fixing some of the more common errors in Windows 95 (and give some pointers on how to avoid them in the first place).

Problem: Computer locked up

This problem has several solutions based on the severity of the problem. With any of these solutions, be patient. Sometimes after pressing a key code to try to resolve the problem your computer may take a full minute to respond.

1. If your mouse still works, try to close the application by clicking the X button in the upper right hand portion of the application window.
2. If your mouse is frozen, try holding down the ALT key and pressing the F4 key simultaneously. This should close the application.
3. If you are still hung up, use the old favorite CTRL+ALT+DEL keys together. This will bring up a list of all of the currently running applications on your computer. Find the program that has the text (NOT RESPONDING) next to it then click on the END TASK button (if you cannot use the mouse, just hit the TAB key until the button is highlighted and press the ENTER key on the keyboard). Wait for at least a full minute. If the computer understands your command, you will see another dialogue box on the screen asking you to confirm the closing of that application.
4. If you get no response at this point use CTRL+ALT+DEL again. This time select SHUT DOWN. Windows will then try it's best to clean up after itself and shut down. Again, please wait patiently for the computer to do it's job. The Shut Down process on some computers may take as long as 3 minutes (my home computer takes 2 minutes and 20 seconds normally)! Once you see the "It Is Now Safe To Turn Off Your Computer" message, turn off the power and wait about a minute before turning it back on.

5. If you have no access to the mouse or keyboard you will have to press the RESET button on the front of the computer.

Damage Control

If you have just crashed then you will need to do some clean-up so that Windows can perform its functions properly. The next big secret is the SCANDISK utility.

When Windows is running it is using part of the hard drive (also known as a SWAP FILE) for temporary storage of open documents and application files. Normally when Windows shuts down, it puts all of those bits and pieces away. When you crash, those fiddly bits are left behind. They may be remnants of an open document or they may be a portion of a program that has now become corrupt. If you do not clean up these bits, you are sure to have more crashes in the future.

The best way to clean up this mess is to click on the START button, then select Programs, Accessories, System Tools then ScanDisk.

The first screen for ScanDisk (see Figure 1) allows you to select the drive you want to scan. In most cases your C:\ drive will be automatically selected. You also have the choice to perform a Standard or Thorough scan. Unless you are having significant problems with your computer a Standard should be fine.

Be sure to check the box labeled "Automatically fix errors" on this screen. Click on the "Advanced" button and turn on the following options:

- Display Summary: Always
- Log File: No log

- Cross-linked files: Delete
- Lost file fragments: Free
- Check files for: Invalid file names
Invalid dates and times
- "Check host drive first" will usually be turned on - leave it that way.

Click on the OK button to clear the Advanced Settings dialogue box then click on Start in the ScanDisk Window.

ScanDisk may take a few minutes to run, but when it finishes it will give you a report on what it was (or wasn't) able to fix. With nearly all Windows crashed, it will be able to correct all problems it encounters.

After completing ScanDisk, you can go on with whatever programs you wish to run. There is no need to reboot.

Get Rid Of Extra Baggage

In Windows 95 each time you delete a file from your hard drive (and only your hard drive) the file goes to your Recycle

Bin on your Desktop. So, if you have been deleting lots of files and think you have reclaimed some hard drive real estate, think again. Use your RIGHT mouse button and click once on the Recycle Bin. Select Empty Trash from the menu with your Left mouse button. (Windows will ask you to confirm deletion.)

Be sure to empty files out of the Windows Temp folder (C:\Windows\Temp) to get some more space (and occasionally better performance).

NETSCAPE USERS!

Remember that for every site you visit, each picture that displays on your screen is being stored on your hard drive. If Netscape is crashing you may have a filled CACHE (storage area for Netscape). To clean out the Cache, select Options from the menu, then Network Preferences. Select the tab that is labelled CACHE and click on the two buttons in the center portion of the screen - Clear Disk Cache, and Clear Memory Cache.
